

Libeskind villa in Switzerland

Home » Property » News » Overseas Property News
» Libeskind villa in Switzerland

Villa Libeskind is a high-end prototype villa designed by Daniel Libeskind on the shores of Lake Maggiore

Monday, 08 March 2010
Arabella Youens

Print Send by email Discuss

With its sharp, angular windows and asymmetrical lines, the Villa Libeskind on the shores of Lake Maggiore describes itself as a 'walk-in sculpture'.

Daniel Libeskind unveiled the show home for his limited edition of 30 prefab houses, designed to be transported anywhere in the world, in autumn 2009. It is now on the market through Wetag Consulting (+41 91 751 3106; www.wetag.ch) for a rumoured €3 million.

Article continues...

Subscriptions

Subscribe to Country Life

The Villa's asymmetrical, tapered silhouette is said to evoke a crystal and the wide expanses of glass are designed to create an uninterrupted connection to nature. Mr Libeskind, whose works include the Imperial War Museum in Manchester, is renowned for his multidisciplinary approach to architecture.

The villa has four bedrooms and complies with some of the toughest energy-saving standards across the world.

Property search

UK Overseas Lettings

Location

Price (Min) £

Price (Max) £

Bedrooms

Receive similar properties by email

Advanced Search

Today's latest properties

More properties for sale

Country Life Poll

Take part in our poll

The most sensible way to invest £750,000 in property would be

- a) A garden flat in Hampstead
- b) A farmhouse in Provence
- c) A pretty village house in Oxfordshire
- d) An apartment in Puerto de Andratx, Mallorca

Tottering-by-Gently

by Annie Tempest

Get Instant Quotes
Free for for HIPs, removals, conveyancing and more.

Subscribe today
COUNTRY LIFE

Your essential guide to countryside living, the Arts, architecture & gardening

COUNTRY LIFE

Subscribe today

